HEALTHY TEETHING:

DON'T GIVE YOUR INFANT THE KEYS TO THE CAR! OR HOUSE OR BIKE LOCK OR...

Who hasn't jingled keys to distract a fussy or teething infant? Many parents and caregivers give keys to young children to occupy them while the adults are busy shopping or doing chores. Children then put the keys, or their hands, in their mouths. The brass that is widely used for key manufacturing usually contains 1.5% – 2.5 % lead. Mouthing on keys is a recognized source of lead exposure for young children.

Teething can be a hard time for some children and their families. Extra love and patience helps. Some babies have no problems while others can be fussy or uncomfortable. Teething usually starts by 6 months of age but can start anytime between 3 and 12 months. The last baby tooth comes in at 30 months of age.

Babies will often chew on whatever they can, including their fingers and toes. Offer them a clean chilled teething ring or a clean wet facecloth to chew on. Once the teeth appear, brush your child's teeth twice a day with a soft baby toothbrush and a grain of rice sized amount of fluoride toothpaste. Avoid teething cookies or biscuits as they may stick to your baby's teeth and cause tooth decay. Be sure to check with your dentist or doctor before using any teething gels, ointments, or tablets.

HAPPY FACES AT THE CHILDREN'S LEAD TESTING CLINIC

Thank you to all the families who came to this year's clinic to get your children tested! Here are some special moments caught on camera...

RADON: HAVE YOU TESTED YOUR HOME?

Everyone should, no matter where you live. Radon is a naturally occurring radioactive gas that can accumulate in homes. It cannot be smelled, tasted or seen. Radon is the second leading cause of lung cancer after smoking. The levels in your home cannot be predicted based on test results from your neighbours. The only way to know is to test. Now is the best time because doors and windows are shut. If you have children at home, test the lowest level of the home with bedrooms, playrooms, or other rooms where children spend time. We have test kits available at our Community Program Office, 1319 Bay Avenue, for a suggested $15 donation to cover costs. The Donna Schmidt Memorial Lung Cancer Prevention Society provides tax receipts for donations.
